

I strongly oppose any relaxation of the current rules regarding media ownership currently under consideration. Diversity in the media is in the best public interest and is fundamental to the democratic process.